PROGRAM INFORMATION

You may use individualized coursework (up to 6 units) toward your criminology and criminal justice degree with the following conditions. You must consult with your criminology and criminal justice advisor before choosing individualized courses. You must use only individualized coursework with a CCJ prefix. Any such coursework counts toward the 6 unit maximum for individualized coursework. If you take more than 6 units of individualized coursework the additional units will count as general elective credit.

Individualized coursework includes the following: CCJ 408 (Internship 1-12 units maximum), CCJ 485 (Undergraduate Research 1-6 units maximum), CCJ 497 (Independent Study 1-6 unit maximum) or CCJ 466 (Legislative Internship 1-12 units maximum).

You may design a track in criminology and criminal justice coursework specific to your career goals. Please see the major work sheet for suggested tracks. It is strongly recommended that you speak to an academic advisor early in your academic career if you wish to design a track.

You must have a "C" or better in all criminology and criminal justice courses used to complete the major requirements. You may apply up to 15 units of criminology and criminal justice or related coursework taken at other institutions toward your Criminology and Criminal Justice degree at NAU.
