To be completed by the Committee Chair (or designee) in consultation with candidate: Your thesis/dissertation will be deposited with ProQuest Dissertations, where it will be available to readers with a subscription. It will also be deposited in OpenKnowledge@NAU making it open access and freely accessible. If you choose not to accept the OpenKnowledge@NAU agreement or choose an embargo, metadata (title, abstract, etc.) will still be made visible. These options must be chosen during the upload process to ProQuest.

Please complete 1-4

_____ Additional fee to make your thesis/dissertation open access via ProQuest's delivery platform.

2. Choose an Embargo: You can select an embargo period to temporarily prevent access to your thesis or dissertation on ProQuest and OpenKnowledge@NAU. The student is responsible for renewing the embargo with both ProQuest and OpenKnowledge@nau.edu.

4. Bound Copies: Department/Committee requires # _____ bound copies through ProQuest. _____ No bound copies required.

Open Access Publishing: Open access (OA) is when a book, article, thesis or dissertation is provided digitally, online, free-of-charge, and free of most copyright and licensing restrictions. Making publications open access ensures the widest distribution, and thus increases the chances that the research will be used and cited by others, rather than requiring a purchase or subscription to gain access. NAU's Open Access option, OpenKnowledge@NAU, is free of charge and provides long-term storage and free public access. If you wish to make your work open access within the ProQuest delivery platform as well, a fee will be applied by ProQuest.

Embargo: If your thesis or dissertation contains patentable, publishable, or sensitive material, you may wish to prevent access temporarily (called an embargo). See the FAQ and the ProQuest guidelines on selecting an embargo period. When an embargo is placed, only the abstract and metadata will be viewable. ProQuest allows embargo increments of 6 months, 1 year, and 2 years. If the student wishes to do so, the student can renew an embargo by contacting the administrator at OpenKnowledge@NAU (openknowledge@nau.edu) and ProQuest (disspub@proquest.com). Please discuss the advantages and disadvantages of this option with your student; no additional petitions or permissions are required by the Graduate College. See the ProQuest Support website on selecting an embargo period.

Copyright Registration: All documents are protected by copyright. However, copyright registration with the US Office of Copyright provides more formal protection against usage infringements. ProQuest can register your copyright for a fee. You may also self-register your copyright at <http://copyright.gov/eco>.

Bound Copies: Please check with your department regarding its policy on bound copies for the department and/or committee chair(s). There is a cost associated with bound copies. If your committee chair(s) and/or department require bound copies, you will be responsible for ensuring that the copies are made and physically delivered.
